WRECKAGE OF MISSING PLANE FOUND BURNED

'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

Thank you, Mr. Jupiter Pluvius for turning off the tears. We have had enough for ten days or two weeks. As soon as we yank some of the weeds out of the flower beds you may again turn loose.

Richmond merchants must have a working agreement with the rain dispenser. No. sonner had the RECORD-HERALD appeared on the street yesterday morning announcing the spring style displays in the stores, than Jupiter urned off the waterfall. It pays to advertise.

Somehow or other we-ve got the foolish idea that we own our own front yard.

Foolish we say, because of the attitude taken by some of the salesmen who use it for depositing their literature and others who think we keep a battery on our door bell for them to wear out.

As far as the house to house peddlers are concerned we suppose there is nothing that can be done about it—but for the promiscuous distributors of handbills and other advertising matter we think something might be done.

Many cities in this state have an ordinance which makes it illegal to distribute hand bills from door to door. It is a good law.

Any article which is for sale that will stand the test is advertised in newspapers. When an article of scheme comes along which the newspapers refuse to advertise at any price, the sellers resort to handbills.

In San Rafael, the agitation that resulted in the passage of the ordinance prohibiting the promiscuous distribution of circulars was fostered by women's organizations, merchants and householders generally. In addition to littering yards and streets the distribution of circulars was found to be a distinct menace in cases where home owners were absent, the accumulation of circulars in front yards advertising their absence to petty thieves. Since the adoption of the ordinance in the Marin county city, it has been generally respected by merchants anxious to abide by the wishes of the people.

And these insistant boys who manage to get the toe of their shoe into the front door and then try to sell you anything from a package of needles to a rebuilt grand piano. Someday we are going to be tempted to trade our bird dog for a good vicious bulldog who has been trained to take care of that type of citizen.

The American citizen has advanced to the stage where he knows just about what he intends to buy weeks ahead of time. There must be a tremendous profit in the house to house sales scheme for the average of sales can't be very high.

And while we're on the subject we are saving a few hand grenades for the time when we meet face to face the voice that gets us out of bed to answer the telephone and then informs us that "I represent the Hokum and Bunkum corporation and we would like to send you an ———— on approval."

* * *

Seems to us that is a job for the telephone company—and it is getting to be quite a nuisance.

BIRTH RECORDED

The birth of Claudia M. Malavolta, on Feb. 2.., to the wife of Blando Malavolta, was received with the Richmond City Health department yesterday.

RIOTS MARK EUROPEAN MEETS

(By United Press)

Throughout the United States, at Montreal, Canada, and in all big European towns except those of Fascist Italy and Soviet Russia, Communists and unemployed celebrated "Red Thursday" with speeches, demands, and in some cases with riots.

Hundreds were arrested altogether, and in Germany, where such riots often result seriously, three men had been killed last night and many wounded. One of the deaths was in Berlin, and the others were at Halle.

London, Berlin, Vienna and other capitals were the scenes of fighting.

In the United States, no riot caused many casualties.

At Washington, 106 demonstrants in the "world-wide protest against unemployment" gathered in front of moving picture cameras at the gates of the White House, and 13 of them were arrested when a leader climbed upon the high iron fence to make his speech.

At New York, 60,000 people massed in Union Square. There was a clash in which many were injured and the crowd dispersed.

In Chicago, because Communists insisted on parading through the Tough West End, police furnished them a guard against possible attack by gangsters.

Demands made by speakers were the same in most instances—higher wages, shorter working hours,

BURKE COUNCIL HONORS HEAD

Burke Council No. 209, of the Y. M. I. was last night host to Raymond D. Williamson, grand president of the Y. M. I. and a member of the California state legislature.

He was accompanied by Past Grand President, John Denehy, Grand Director Patrick J. Ryan, District Deputy Lennie Brazil and Council Deputy Frank Ryken.

Williamson, in his speech, outlined his policies for the balance of the term. Each of the men accompanying him also spoke on Y.-M. I. work.

Speeches were also made by Honorary Chaplain, Rev. Father Griffen; Chaplain Rev. Father William Cleary and Past Chaplain Rev. Father Harold Collins.

Entertainment was provided by District Deputy Frank Ryken of Berkeley, and consisted of a juvenile boxing bout, clog dances, and a song and dance skit.

All of the talent was imported from Berkeley, and their contributions were well received.

During the meeting the organization of a baseball team was announced, which will compete in inter-council games this season. James Thompson is in charge of the organization.

Following the meeting and program a sumptous banquet was served under the personal direction of Joe Silva. He was assisted by Jerry Riordan Sr. and Bernard Dolan.

Boys Returned To Homes Here

Capt. of Police L. E. Jones returned from Santa Ana yesterday morning, bringing with him John Gerletti, 15, of 4914 Wall street and Edwin Massa, 19, of Forty-ninth street and Wall street.

The two boys disappeared from their homes here several days ago and were apprehended by Santa Ana police. They have been turned over to their parents.

Lindy Takes Ground Loop From Horse

DEL MONTE, Mar. 6—(U.P.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was thrown from a horse while taking his first riding lesson here today. He was dragged 25 feet before he extricated himself from the stirrups.

He rose and picked up his hat, apparently unhurt.

The accident occurred on the polo field where he had been watching the Argentine players practice.

He was taking lessons in polo riding from Arthur P. Perkins when the accident occurred. The horse was galloping across the field when Lindbergh's foot became entangled in the stirrup. He was thrown instantly and dragged 25 feet but seemed none the worse for the episode.

LOCAL POLICE INVESTIGATE EXPLOSION

Residents in the vicinity of Roosevelt avenue, between Twelfth and Seventeenth streets were startled early last night by a mysterious explosion.

Police, newspapers and the fire department were immediately besieged by telephone calls. Fear was expressed that neighboring powder factories had blown up.

Police immediately launched an investigation that proved, up to a late hour last night, to be futile.

Several theories have been advanced as to the cause of the blast. It is known that chemistry students have been manufacturing gunpowder and placing it on street car and railroad tracks. Police declare that the blast may have been caused by torpedoes placed on the right of way of the Southern Pacific railroad or by boys firing off a gigantic firecracker.

Residents of the neighborhood were at a loss to describe the blast some declaring that it sounded like a huge explosion while others insisted that it sounded more like a pistol shot.

As far as it could be learned last night, no damage was caused.

Moore Annulment Hearing Today

The annulment suit filed by Jesse James Moore against Maude Moore will be heard today in the Superior court at Martinez. According to the complaint filed by Moore, his wife had not obtained an absolute decree of divorce when they were married. Tsar N. Calfee is attorney for Moore.

CARS COLLIDE

Cars driven by Mrs. Alma Parks, of Richmond and Leonard P. Clarke of Berkeley, collided at McBryde and San Pablo avenues yesterday, police reported. No one was injured.

6 DAY WEEK ADOPTED BY REFINERIES

Although no official notice has been received by heads of the Richmond Refinery of the Standard Oil company of California, belief was expressed yesterday that production at the local plant would be cut one-seventh, that is, place it on the equivalent of a six-day week.

Refineries of the Shell and Associated Oil companies will put the same plan into effect, according to announcements made yesterday.

Standard Oil officials announced that the number of employes would not be reduced, nor will wages be cut.

The announcements follow the urgent plea of the Federal Oil conservation board at Washingon to curtail production of oils and gasoline. The board declared that gasoline stocks have increased beyond the present demand, and as a result, oil and gasoline are being wasted.

Executives of the oil companies pointed out that actual six-day operation is not feasible from a practical operation standpoint, but that by reduction in volume of operations, an equivalent basis can be reached without reduction in employment.

The announcement of the Standard Oil board of directors was as follows:

"Standard Oil company of California announces that, effective immediately, it will operate its refineries on the equivalent of a six-day week. Refinery operations of necessity being continuous, this will be accomplished by reducing the weekly runs of crude oil one-seventh. This will be done without the laying off of any labor and without any reduction in pay.

"The Standard Oil company of California will continue to operate on the reduced schedule so long as conditions permit, and in case this schedule does not produce sufficient gasoline to meet its outstanding obligations it will purchase gasoline from other California refineries if such is available, rather than to increase the runs of crude oil to its stills."

In announcing the six-day week plan for the Shell Oil company, President Leigh-Jones of the Shell company stated:

"Notwithstanding the fact that it already has shut in approximately 45 per cent of its crude oil production, Shell Oil Co. welcomes the further conservation of the state's natural resources recommended by the Federal Oil Conservation Board to the governor of California, that refinery operations should be shut down on Sundays to restrict the increase in stocks of gasoline.

"On account of the nature of its refining operations, it will not be possible for the Shell Oil Co. actually to shut down its refineries one day a week, but arrangements will be made immediately to reduce refining operations by one-seventh as long as conditions render this desirable. No reduction in personnel or payroll is contemplated on account of this restriction in operations."

PHILLIP HARLOW NAMED HEAD OF LOCAL CHURCH FELLOWSHIP

Phillip L. Harlow was named president of the Richmond Church Fellowship last night at a meeting held in the First Baptist church parlors under the auspices of the Salvation Army of Richmond.

Rev. K. B. Wallace was named vice-president of the group and I. E. Hill was reelected secretary and treasurer.

City, county and Salvation Army officials were in attendance. City officials present were councilmen Mattie Chandler and A. B. Hinkley and City Engineer E. A. Hoffman; P. M. Sanford, president of the chamber of commerce, and others. County officers present included Sheriff R. R. Veale, A. N. Sullinger, M. Joost, J. O. Meese, C. A. Dodge, James Hoey, Rex. Boyer, Mrs. J. H. Morrow, J. H. Wells Dr. T. A. Boyer and J. A. Long.

MANY OFFER TAFT AID

WASHINGTON, March 6.—UP—The present grave illness of William Howard Taft has brought forth scores of letters from all parts of the country, each with a recommendation of "a sure cure" for the former president.

Physicians attending Taft revealed today they had received these messages from well-meaning but obviously untrained persons who had read of Taft's condition. These "cures" ranged all the way from old fashioned household remedies to such treatments as "lots of orange juice' or "big helpings of browned potatoes."

Dr. Francis Hagner and Dr. Thomas Clayton, who are attending the former chief justice, on their morning visit today spent only about half of the usual period of consultation and examination. After leaving Taft's bedside they issued this statement:

"There has been no change in the condition of the former chief justice since yesterday. He is comfortable and continues to take nourishment.

After their usual visit to the Taft home at 7 p. m. the physicians issued the following bulletin:

"The former chief justice has taken nourishment fairly well but his condition has shown no improvement since this morning."

McKinley Masons Planning To Hold Instruction Lodge

At a stated meeting of the McKinley Masonic lodge last night, it was announced that a lodge of instruction would be held next Thursday night. A. C. Curtis, worshipful master ,presided over the meeting last night.

On March 20, an educational program will be held, with a speaker, program and banquet. It is expected a large gathering of Masons will be present.

Plans were also made at last night's meeting for the receiving of Richmond Chapter, Order of DeMolay on March 27. At this time the chapter will confer a double degree for the benefit of the McKinley lodge.

NO SIGN OF LIFE AT CRASH

LOS ANGELES, Mar. 6—(U.P.)—The wreckage of the Western Air Express plane missing for 12 days with a crew of three men was reported seen from the air today in a box canyon 16 miles northeast of Lake Arrowhead.

The report was telephoned to Western Air Express officials here by Dudley Steele, head of the Richfield Oil company aviation department, who had been flying over the San Bernardino mountains.

The canyon is believed to be in approximately the district in which J. P. Barber, a young rancher reported earlier in the week that he had viewed wreckage through binoculars. Subsequent search failed to locate the canyon described by Barber.

The plane, piloted by James Doles, disappeared a week ago Sunday after leaving Kingman, Ariz., for Los Angeles. Doles was accompanied by W. E. Beiber, copilot, and John Slaton, steward.

Storms were encountered enroute and it was regarded as likely that Doles had crashed into the mountains in a heavy rain.

Steele telephoned from Miller's ranch, a stopping point on the Western Air route and then flew to Los Angeles. Searching parties were sent out immediately.

Steele said he saw no sign of life about the wreckage and that it was in a badly demolished condition.

Steele said that the plane had been burned and that only the tail section remained fairly intact. He and a Miss Burns, who was with him, said they saw numbers on the tail section that corresponded with those of the missing ship.

He declared he was positive that what he had seen was the Doles plane. He gave its location as about five miles from Coxey's ranger station.

The region is heavily covered with brush and timber and it was regarded as doubtful if the searchers would be able to locate the spot indicated by Steele until Friday morning.

The demolished craft was first seen by Steele and his companion. When they landed, they informed Western Air of their discovery and Pilot Monte Shelton, of the air line, made a flight on which he confirmed Steele's report.

Both Steele and Shelton said that the plane had struck a 5200 foot ridge and that parts of the ship ha drolled down the mountain side.

They said they were convinced that James Doles, pilot, W. E. Beiber, co-pilot and John Slaton, steward, died instantly.

Automobile parties left immediately for the district, 20 miles northeast of Lake Arrowhead and were expected to penetrate the brush to the wreck tomorrow.

Eielson Body On Way Home

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, March 6.—UP—The plane bearing the bodies of Lieut. Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland made the trip from Nome to Ruby today, according to a telephone message received here. It was expected that the funeral plane would proceed here where the bodies will be accorded high honors. Eielson and Borland when their plane crashed several months ago whiel en route to aid the crew of the ice-bound motorship Nanuk, near North Cape, Siberia.

FORD PLANT IN SOUTH TO OPEN SOON

With announcement of the completion of the Long Beach assembly plant of the Ford Motor company, citizens of Richmond yesterday looked forward to an early start of construction of the new Ford plant on the inner harbor.

Press dispatches from Los Angeles stated that the new plant at Long Beach was completed and will be ready for operation within 30 days. The plant will employ 2500 men and will turn out 400 cars per day.

In announcing the Richmond factory, Edsel Ford, of the Ford Motor company, stated that work would be started on the Richmond factory as soon as the Long Beach assembly plant was completed and in operation.

As a result, residents of this city are lead to believe that actual work will be started on the local plant in May.

The Richmond assembly plant will cost more than $2,000,000 and will employ more than 2500 men. It will replace the present Ford assembly plant in San Francisco.

The plant will be located on a large site on the Richmond inner harbor and will be served by two trans-continental railroads and by shippers.

The local plant is to be modeled along the lines of the Long Beach plant, which is said to be one of the most modern in the country.

MANILA SCHOOL STRIKERS WAIT

MANILA, P. I. March 6.—UP—The Manila high school student's strike has developed into a waiting contest—with each side unwilling to make a move for fear of "losing face."

Striking students, piqued by allegedly insulting taunts of an American woman teacher, flaunted the advice of Gov. General Dwight Davis, Senator Manuel Quezon, and other native and American leaders, and continued to stay away from school.

Parents and pupils were expected to make peace overtures shortly, however, it was thought today.

The strike has so far been orderly ,save for a few instances where juvenile enthusiasm for rebellion gained temporary hold.

CALFEE IN OAKLAND

Tsar N. Calfee, Richmond attorney was in Oakland yesterday on business.

BUILDING TO START AT ONCE

Plans were revealed here yesterday by authoritative sources that negotiations for the erection of a $400,000 fish cannery on a site at Point Molate were nearly completed.

Officials of the company who asked that their names be withheld until a later date revealed that they were purchasing an eight acre site at Point Molate from the Wells Fargo Union Trust company.

According to present plans of the company, approximately 200 employes will be used to man the plant after it is first completed. This number will be augumented by a can factory which will also be built as an adjunct to the cannery.

Construction of the plant is to be started as soon as the necessary details can be arranged. It is hoped to have the plant completed and the equipment in place in time for the fishing season which will open on Aug. 15.

The buildings of the company are to be of steel frame, with corrugated iron sides and concrete floors.

The entire plant when completed will be the most modern in the United States those in charge of the arrangements for the company here announced yesterday.

Location of the plant, and special equipment to be installed, will eliminate all objectionable odors from the residential sections of the city, officials of the cannery stated yesterday.

G.H.T. JACKSON TAKES OWN LIFE

SAN FRANCISCO, March 6.—UP—After writing a letter to the coroner in which he explained that he preferred death to suffering from tuberculosis, George H. T. Jackson, president and general manager of the Napa Soda company, San Francisco, shot himself late today in Golden Gate park.

His body was found by a passerby ,with the revolver in his hand, and the note in his pocket. He had been dead some hours, attendants at Park emergency hospital stated.

Jackson, whose home was in San Anselmo, a residential suburb, was a widower.

A brother, Andrew Jackson, survives him.

PHANTOM

I cannot walk this street, for they
Once walked together here, and now
I sense her step, and see the way
The lamplight caught her lips and brow
As she upturned her face to him;
I hear his step match hers—a word
Enfold her question, like the dim
And lovely passage of a bird.

I dare not walk this street, for I
Am but her phantom who returns
To echoes of a day gone by—
To lonelinesss of space that burns!

WHEN A MAN COOKS

SOME women boast of the fact that they "can't stand a man around the kitchen." Others—far wiser wives, in our opinion—give all the praise and encouragement in the world to their husband's gift for broiling a mean steak, or for constructing a crab-meat newburg in the Sunday night chafing dish.

Not every man—and certainly not every woman!—can cook. Some men, like some women, assume a complete culinary helplessness, on the principle that "if you don't (and won't) know how, you won't be asked." But when a man can and does cook, he may be a most convenient person to have around the house.

Nobody, of course, suggests that a husband should put on an apron and do all the cooking—although when he does that little thing professionally he earns the title of cordon bleu and a splendid salary. But, in these days of the fifty-fifty wife, the fifty-fifty, fair-playing husband isn't ashamed to help her by working a bit in the home—just as she helps him by working outside it. That extremely efficient domestic engineer, Mrs. Lillian Gilbreth, outspokenly advises the modern girl to marry a "kitchen husband."

Boy Scouts learn to cook. Boys at West Point learn how to make beds. No, there's nothing the least bit effeminate, nowadays, about a man's admitting a knowledge of cookery.

And when a man cooks, so far as our observation goes, he usually does a fine job. He is not, of course, hampered by having to keep within a weekly budget.

His cooking is likely to be "rich" in more than one sense of the word, yet, considering what he saves a harassed housewife in labor and thought, she can well afford to let him come into the kitchen now and then and play artist. If she is wise, she will not discourage the husband who remarks, "You're tired, dear—let me get dinner to-night," and who then proceeds to concoct the special dishes of which he is fond.

IF THERE really is any woman who doubts whether a man CAN cook, let her study a new mouth-watering, man-made cookbook, entitled, "The Gourmet's Almanac." We usually leave the printing of recipes to our efficient co-worker, Nancy Dorris, but we think she'll forgive us to-day for passing on a few of the delicacies personally compounded by this Almanac's author, Allan Ross Macdougall. He has not only made the following dishes but made them up. And don't they sound delicious enough to prove that a man can cook?

"I took a handful of very small onions—they were about the size of nuts. These I peeled and boiled until they were tender, and then strained them and put them to one side while I made some Sauce Mornay, quite thick and just enough to cover the number of onions cooked. In the frying pan I put a good-sized dab of butter—therein lies one of the secrets of the making of an edible omelette; plenty of butter in the pan—and in this I browned my little onions lightly before consigning them to the sauce. Then in the frying pan I poured my eggs well-beaten—nine for four people—with a dash of cream, and when the omelette was set and almost ready to be folded I added the little onions in their Mornay Sauce. A very delectable dish, said the guests, though a little troublesome to turn out."

ANOTHER invention of Mr. Macdougall's, which sounds delectable to us, is the tomato dish which he has dedicated to Isadora Duncan, because it combines the "food of Aphrodite"—oysters—with the "apples of love"—the old-fashioned name for tomatoes. He writes:

"I took six good tomatoes and two dozen oysters, a good sized onion, a cup of bread-crumbs, butter, salt and pepper. The tops were cut off the tomatoes and the contents scooped out into a bowl. The hollowed vegetables were then salted inside and turned bottoms up to stand for a while; then laid in the dish that was to bear them to the oven, with a lump of butter mixed with chopped parsley placed in each one. So buttered they were put in the oven to cook five minutes while the sauce was being prepared.

"The onion was finely chopped up and put to brown in lots of butter. When done, the insides of the tomatoes, from which the seeds had been strained, were added and cooked until an unctuous sauce was made. After the seasoning, the juice of the oysters, previously strained, was poured in, and most of the cup of bread-crumbs was added. When this was well mixed, it was set aside, and the tomatoes were taken from the oven. Into each one four oysters were put, and over them the thick sauce was poured. Over the tops bread-crumbs were scattered, and the tomatoes so stuffed were set back in the oven to cook for ten minutes more.

Finally, we quote his suggestion for varying that delicious dish, French pancakes. Sometimes, he says, "I cook my thin pancakes and lay them aside. Then I take bananas—one for each person—and fry them slowly in butter. When they are cooked, I cut them in halves, sprinkle them with powdered sugar, and wrap each piece in a pancake, turning in the ends of the pancake as they are rolled. These are then laid in a buttered silver chafing dish, and when the time comes for serving a sauce composed of sugar, butter and a glass each of curacao and Grand Marnier is poured over them and lighted at the table." The pancakes would be good, we think, even with Volsteadism, non-alcoholic liqueurs in the sauce.

Of course, it is necessary to "let good digestion wait on appetite" for Mr. Macdougall's toothsome but rich recipes—nevertheless, if the proof of the pudding is in the eating, we'll wager that the proof of man's cleverness in cooking is in the eating of the above dainties.

A DISH A DAY

By Nancy Dorris

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

Spanish cream belonging to the Bavarian cream family once was reserved for Sunday dinner enjoyment and company meals. Because of the milk and eggs that go into it, the old-fashioned dessert appears frequently at the table that children and adults may partake freely of it.

The flavors range from apricot to tutti-frutti in the modern cook-book, but in the cook-book of other days wine dominated the flavoring field. Sherry of the non-alcoholic type is often used to simulate the old-time company cream.

Being a moulded gelatine, Spanish cream improves with ripening in the icebox. It is, therefore, a dessert to be made in the morning for evening consumption. The simple cream may be changed to suit individual taste and become a rather dressy dessert.

SHERRY SPANISH CREAM

Three cups rich milk
One and one-half teaspoons gelatine
One-fourth cup cold water
Scant one-half cup sugar
Yolks of three eggs
One-eighth teaspoon salt
Three tablespoons sherry flavoring
Whites of three eggs
Moulding time: three to four hours
Servings: six

Instead of egg whites, fold in one cup of whipped cream, or use both the stiffly beaten egg whites and whipped cream. The addition of the whipped cream refines the texture of the cream and gives a more partyfied cream. The amount of sherry varies with individual taste, some wishing more and some less than the quantity suggested in the above recipe. A teaspoon of vanilla substituted for the sherry gives plain Spanish cream.

A double boiler is necessary to the success of the dessert, as no actual boiling is desirable. The gelatine loses its power to stiffen through boiling.

Soak the gelatine in cold water five minutes. Scald the milk in the double boiler top; add the soaked gelatine and stir well. Next pour in the sugar, stir and let heat a moment. Beat the egg yolks in a bowl and pour some of the heated milk-sugar-gelatine in over them; then turn the eggs into the heated mixture in the double boiler. Cook slowly until thick—about fifteen minutes. Straining may be necessary if the mixing of egg yolks and hot milk has been too sudden.

Beat the hot mixture taken from the fire and then add the salt and sherry. Whip the egg whites until stiff and fold carefully into the cooling mixture. Pour into individual moulds, or a large fancy mould, and set in the icebox to harden and mellow. The cream may be served as soon as it hardens, although the flavor deepens with keeping. Cream or a marshmallow fruit sauce accompanies the cream to the table.

For variation of the simple recipe, one cup of whipped cream is folded into the creamy mixture after the egg whites have been incorporated. The flavor may be vanilla instead of sherry for a special fruit dessert. The moulds may be lined with berries in season or any preferred fresh or canned fruit or preserved fruits and nuts and the thickening cream mixture poured into them. The mellowing process is essential for the fruit Spanish cream.

The Budget for Clothing

THE clothing budget of the family cannot be apportioned according to any set rule. It depends largely upon the size of the family, their occupations and social contacts.

It may range anywhere between 10 and 20 per cent. of the income. The larger the income the lower the clothing allowance. In a model budget for a family of three children and the parents $500 (20 per cent.) is allowed for clothing out of an income of $2,500, whereas a $10,000 income allows $1,190, which is only 11.9 per cent.

It has, however, been estimated that 15 per cent., or one-seventh of the income, is a fair allowance for clothing. This should be divided into thirds, husband and wife each getting one-third and the remaining third being used for the children. As the children grow older the family income will increase and thus provide for their larger demands in clothing.

One woman who is budgeting the family income of $3,000 successfully, allows $450 for clothing and she subdivides this as follows: outer clothing 70 per cent. ($315), underclothing 20 per cent. ($90), accessories 5 per cent. ($22.50), care and findings 5 per cent. ($22.50), and this seems an easy and convenient division to work on in the monthly summing up.

Outer clothing includes hats, coats, furs, suits, dresses, sweaters, skirts, blouses, shirts, trousers, aprons, gloves and footwear—excepting stockings.

Underclothing comprises the usual articles of underwear, night dresses, pajamas bathrobes, negligees, stockings, socks and garters.

Under accessories put handkerchiefs, umbrellas, collars, neckwear, belts, scarfs and mufflers, handbags, billfolders, purses, etc.

Care and findings mean cleansing, repairs and remodeling, sewing materials, pins, tapes, buttons and all findings.

Modernizing the Home

How to Build Around Present Possessions

By Alma Zaiss

Dear Miss Zaiss:

Would appreciate your advice more than you can imagine. Am enclosing sketch of rooms I expect to furnish. Would like your suggestions as to what to get in the line of bed room suite, master living room and foyer; also placing curtains, drapes, and all the small details that mean so much to a real livable home of distinction.

Am considering satin wood for bed room. What sort of floor covering would be suitable inasmuch as adjoining room—living room—has a 9x12 rug, Anglo-Saxon all over, pattern of indefinite design; don't care very much for it, but must retain it.

Have in the living room to start with a baby grand piano, also radio of miniature grand style—fits in corner—and a real good end table. Don't care for anything cheap looking, but don't want anything too expensive; about $400 for living room and the same amount for bed room furniture.

Also have a beautiful piano throw and pillow to match in rust damask chenille embroidery—rather elaborate, therefore don't know what colors to get for soja, club chair and what ever else you suggest. MRS. C. P. C.

WHEN one may carry out a purchasing program unhampered by restrictions, then indeed shopping for new furniture becomes a glorious escapade. But, unfortunately, few are able to travel this carefree path. Brides alone enjoy the rare privilege of outfitting a home with no past handicaps. Home-makers in general find that—in spite of the rosiest dreams of new equipment—there is this rug, that sofa, such-and-such a half-worn chair which must be kept in circulation. And the brave new scheme, therefore, must be built around the old pieces instead of starting off on its own account.

In Mrs. C.'s home, for example, two cherished pieces of rust-colored damask and a patterned rug have planted themselves in the very foreground of our scheme and dictate to us in no uncertain terms. Except for them, practically all new furnishings will be bought. But if they remain, Mrs. C. must plan her rooms around them, for they establish important notes of color and design.

The diagram shows the various new pieces of furniture recommended for the two rooms, and the placement of them. We cannot quite visualize the miniature grand radio, but whatever its shape, it will doubtless fit best in the wall space between the entrance and the bedroom door.

The sofa and one overstuffed chair in the living room might be of the Lawson type; a Martha Washington chair or one of similar design would also be at home in this scheme; the chair in the curve of the piano and the one to the right of the door could be of the open arm type which is comfortable, graceful, and medium in size.

If the pieces of rust-colored damask are fine and worthwhile from an artistic standpoint, and Mrs. C. wants to retain them, her draperies and upholstering should run to the henna and orange tones, with a touch of turquoise blue. Thus, the sofa may be covered with frieze or velvet in a rich henna tone. The two chairs at either side of the sofa may be covered with a striped fabric bringing in the colors of the rug. A henna self-patterned fabric and a blue-green damask or brocatelle may be used for the two open-arm chairs. Table lamps may have bases of Persian blue pottery and shades of gold or honey-colored silk, and the various tones of Persian blue could be repeated by draperies of shaded linen over glass curtains of honey-colored voile.

According to Mrs. C.'s original floor plan (not shown), her foyer is long and very narrow, affording scant opportunity for decoration. On the left-hand wall she may have room for a shallow console or chest of drawers with a very small side chair at either side. A mirror and two good color prints would be appropriate for the wall above the chest. On the extreme end wall of the foyer there may be another picture.

For the bedroom, we are afraid Mrs. C. will have some difficulty in finding good satinwood pieces within the budget of $400. Possibly, in the half-price sales in progress, she may find the important pieces at good reductions; but complete furnishings in this wood could hardly be acquired within the limits outlined. We hope Mrs. C. will also consider the less costly woods, remembering that simple pieces in maple, walnut or maple and mahogany combined will prove far more charming than satinwood of inferior grade.

The well-balanced window wall of the room deserves an attractive setting, and for this space we suggest a vanity to be used between the two windows, with a chaise longue and a restful chair at either side. The illustration shows a similar grouping which possesses much charm, and we also call Mrs. C.'s attention to the small book-table and hanging shelf near the chaise. Such an arrangement would be good for the wall space to the left of her chaise longue—and it affords a pleasant change from the conventional end table. Other pieces recommended include a bed (or twin beds), night tables, a chest of drawers or a dresser, and a hanging mirror.

SCALED DIAGRAM OF ARRANGEMENT

In selecting colors for the bedroom Mrs. C. should pick out the two that she likes best in the living room rug and build her scheme around them. She may have a plain rug in the more important of the two colors. The bed spread may be of fine cotton or linen in the second color, and for the windows she might use one of the modern figured cottons or voiles which are very attractive. The chaise longue could be covered with striped material combining several colors used in the room, and the boudoir chair by the window should repeat one of the plain colors found in the curtain design.

When the bedroom opens directly off the living room it is a very good idea to use a screen before the door. Here a four-fold screen can be placed so that it will completely mask the bed and leave a little vista through to the wall where the chest and mirror stand. A scenic wall paper screen would be particularly suitable for this plan.

The long wall of the room is also quite important and should have a decorative treatment. Above the bed it would be interesting to have a lovely picture, large enough to hold the centre of the stage, and a pair of smaller pictures may be hung at either side. Or a wall hanging would show to fine advantage above the bed.

We have suggested no luxurious furniture or fabrics for these rooms, for the budget is not large enough to attempt them, nor are they necessary in order to achieve a good effect. In furniture, good workmanship and design and proper proportions are more to be desired than special woods. In fabrics, the right colors and patterns are far more important than the shimmer of silk or satin; and they can be found in abundance among long-wearing linens and cottons, sturdy velvets, wool damasks and basket-weave cloths.

Mrs. C.'s plan has developed quite naturally around a few old pieces which require many additions in order to complete the scheme. If the principles outlined are followed faithfully the result should be quite harmonious—and almost as effective as though all things were new.

"DAD, what is salt?"

"You know what salt is."

"Yes, I know what we use it for, but what is it?"

"Chemists say it is Na Cl."

"What's Na Cl?"

"Sodium chlorid."

"What's sodium chlorid?"

"Salt."

"Why is sodium chlorid salt?"

"Because people called it that even before they knew salt was Na Cl."

"Why did they call it salt before they knew it was Na Cl?"

"Oh, go to bed."

Helping the School Child

By Emilie Hoff

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

A FOURTH GRADER was getting low marks and showed an attitude of indifference toward school. He happened to have a mother who was interested in his school progress so an investigation was started. She visited the teacher and questioned the boy. To her astonishment she discovered her son had defective hearing. He sat in the rear of the room and failed to understand the teacher's instructions and directions.

The child did not realize that mentioning this might change matters, so he said nothing, but continued reprimands from the teacher, unjust criticism at home and constant failure in school had its ill effect upon his disposition and his relations to school. He became shy and sullen, he developed an inferiority complex and lost interest in school until mother began to act.

It has been estimated that a million children in the United States fail to pass the school test for the ears and this is largely due to early neglect. When the child complains of earache, hot salt bags are applied, the pain ceases and the matter is treated as "just a little cold he caught." Even a discharging ear is no warning in many cases, so it is not surprising that other symptoms are overlooked.

If the child invariably says, "what?" when spoken to, it is considered a bad habit that must be broken. This surmise may be correct in many cases, but it is safer to first make sure there is no impairment of hearing. If you notice that your child frequently tilts his head in a listening attitude to better catch the sound, you may be reasonably sure his hearing is not normal. If he is habitually inattentive or seems dull do not scold him until you have made sure there is no defect in his hearing. The expressionless voice and imperfect articulation are further symptoms of impaired hearing.

Mothers would do well to test the hearing of their children. Stand about 25 feet away from the child and pronounce numbers in a whisper, having the child repeat the numbers after you. Test each ear separately by having him hold one ear closed and stand where he cannot read your lips. Also try the watch test. Have the child close his eyes and stop up one ear with his finger then hold a watch about two feet away from the ear and he should hear the tick of the watch.

If you are not satisfied that the hearing is perfect, lose no time in having an examination made by a physician. Your child may be among the 60 to 80 per cent. of the cases that are curable if treated early. Never neglect or treat lightly any symptom of ear trouble, as this not only impairs the health of the school child but is a hindrance in his school progress.

TELLING THE WORLD

(J. Herman Seidlitz, who has been covering the Prohibition hearing at Washington for our readers, has returned to the South Pole just in time to return home with Commander Byrd. Mr. Seidlitz needs no introduction to the literate public as a polar authority. He was the first man to wear earlaps in a talking picture theatre. He accompanied Dr. Cook to the North Pole and very nearly accompanied him to jail. He was the first man to tame a polar bear rug and make it jump through a hoop. We publish below his latest despatch and it is all right with us if it's the last.)

COMING HOME WITH BYRD

By J. Herman Seidlitz

ABOARD BYRD SUPPLY SHIP, Feb. 25 (By Marconigram and Spaghetti)—We are bound for New Zealand now, on our way home. I am the only member of the party who hasn't got a lecture tour booked to commence in April. Byrd and the others boys are already practising pouring water out of a pitcher and going into their spiel. They figure by June, 1931, they will have discovered 850 new women's clubs.

When he reach New Zealand fall will just be commencing there, so we can leave our raccoon coats on. From New Zealand we will go to Australia. I hope there is a bar there. I will be in San Francisco by April 15 if there isn't. For fifteen months I have been drinking nothing but canned heat. My stomach is full of clinkers.

As we passed the Ross Ice Barrier I said to Byrd, "Well, Admiral, our polar trip is about over." He said, "Yes, thank God. No more special radio programs we have to listen to." For a while it looked like we wouldn't have time to discover the South Pole, there were so many specially prepared programs coming in. It finally got so we listened to them in relays so the rest of the boys could get some sleep.

It has been a very pleasant trip in the Antarctic regions, and it will be tough to get back to America and find ice 60 cents for 100 pounds.

We left our airplane behind as a souvenir for the Eskimos. They can have some good, clean fun flying around in it, but when the gas gives out they will have a hell of a time finding a filling station.

The trip has done Byrd a lot of good. When he left the United States he was only a Commander. Now he is an Admiral. If there were any more Poles to discover he would work himself up to Secretary of the Navy.

I had an interesting chat with Byrd to-day. I said "Admiral, you have been to the North and South Poles. Which do you like best?"

He said, "Herman, that is a delicate question. I am like Judge Landis in a World Series when the National League is playing the American League. I hope they both win."

I said, "Is the cost of living any cheaper at the North Pole than the South Pole?"

He said, "No, it is about the same. They both soak the tourists."

I said, "What do you think of the prospects for the South Pole?"

He said, "It is bound to grow. The temperature is ideal for keeping milk from souring."

With the scalps of both Poles dangling from his belt, I don't know what Byrd can do next. The only feat I can think of for him to accomplish is to go to the North Pole again and prove there is no Santo Claus.

New Kind of Salts Taking Country By Storm

They Revitalize the System — Induce Youthful Activity —Keep Body In Splendid Condition— Free From Fat.

It doesn't take long for Americans to wake up to a good thing—only a few months ago Kruschen Salts were introduced into this country and the welcome news of their superior goodness and swift rejuvenating power traveled so fast that at one time the supply was many carloads behind the demand.

All of which goes to prove that Americans know good salts when they take them and want their friends to benefit also.

Kruschen Salts are taken for their health building value all over hte world—they are the largest selling medicinal salts in Great Britain today.

Kruschen Salts are different from other salts—Kruschen is six salts in one—the very same six salts that nature put into the human body at the beginning of creation and demands you keep them there or your health won't be as good as it should be.

Unlike most salts Kruschen isn't simply a laxative—if that't all you want any old kind of salts with any kind of a label will do — but is that all you want?

When you take Kruschen Salts you not only stimulate your bowels, liver and kidneys to function naturally and perfectly, but you supply every internal organ, gland, nerve and fibre in the body with nature's own revitalizing and rejuvenating minerals.

A bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts 4 weeks costs but 85c at La Moine Drug Co. or any drug store in America—take one half a teaspoon in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast — in just a few days indolence changes to activity and life grows brighter.

Before the bottle is empty you'll feel years younger—eyes will brighten—step grow sprightlier—nerves steadier—you'll sleep sound, enjoy your meals and after a hard day's work you'll be ready for wholesome recreation—one million Americans know all this—ask your druggist.

BACHELOR GIRL HAS AUDIENCE APPEAL

"The Bachelor Girl," the Columbia picture synchronized with dialogue and music, which opens tomorrow at the Fox-California theater has a great deal of audience appeal.

The story deals with Joyce, a pretty and unusually efficient private secretary in a large business organization and Jimmy, a ne'er-do well young man who has certain ideas about his own particular efficiency and the inefficiency of his superiors. One day he is caught expanding on this theory by his employer. He is promptly discharged.

Jimmy, undismayed, goes to a rival concern and tells them how good he is. Through sheer luck he lands the position. Because of her great love for Jimmy, Joyce leaves her position and goes to work as his private secretary. Through her help, Jimmy progresses very rapidly with the new firm. He is taken up socially by his new employer. In a short time Jimmy's former shiftlessness and inefficiency shows itself. Besides neglecting his work, he neglects Joyce and rushes Grace, a pleasure-loving society girl. A crisis is reached and Jimmy is fired. He and Joyce decide to part.

Two years later finds Jimmy on the downward path and Joyce a successful bachelor girl. In spite of it all, they have continued caring for each other and when a chance meeting brings them together, their old love burns with renewed vigor.

Jacqueline Logan and William Collier, Jr., give intelligent performances in the leading roles. They are ably supported by Thelma Todd and Edward Hearn. Dialogue has been injected at most appropriate intervals thus enhancing the dramatic value of the production.

A Krazy Kat cartoon and talking comedy are also on the program.

U. S. Farm Board Plans To Buy Wheat Surplus

WASHINGTON, March 6.—UP—The federal farm board, through the National Grain Stabalization corporation plans to take virtually all the surplus wheat off the market to stabalize the grain industry.

The entire resources of the board will be turned over to the stabalization corporation if the need arises. The board now has $75,000,000 on hand and will ask congress for additional funds if the emergency continues.

"The grain stabalization corporation will continue buying wheat at the market and remove from the market whatever additional quantity may be necessary to relieve the pressure and prevent any considerable decline in wheat prices," Chairman Alexander Legge of the board said today.

The farm board is prepared to advance to this farmers organization whatever funds are necessary."

Wheat experts estimated that $150,000,000 may be needed to carry out this program as the visible grain supply is now well over 160,000,000 bushels and practically all of this is considered surplus stock.

School nurse says all girls should know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."
Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless, and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

510 Visitors At Health Center

According to a report filed yesterday by Mrs. Nora Purviance, director of the Richmond Health Center, a total of 510 visits were made to the clinic during the month of February. In addition to that number, there were 339 visits of patients for treatments and dressings.

The dental department ranked first in the number of visits with a total of 151. Of the remaining visits, 73 were made for vaccinations, and the rest for other treatment.

In the report 49 new patients are listed, 91 visits of the health center to patients, eight minor operations and 162 dressings and treatments are recorded.

A total of 55 clinics were held during the month with the staff giving 66 hours to the work. Twelve cases were declared ineligible.

The visits to the dental department do not include 10 appointments on the waiting list.

In 90 cases during the month, anesthetics were used, each of them local.

JEANNE EAGELS SUPERB IN LAST FILM

The vital question of "Should a woman tell?" and the problem of how to protect love and home when they are threatened, gorgeously presented in a Parisian background with dynamic Jeanne Eagels, holds audience sspellbound with the intense dramatic action of "Jealousy" the Paramount all-talking picture being presented at the Fox-California theater for the last times today.

Jeanne Eagels, who scored such a great success in "The Letter" combined with a cast of sterling stage favorites including Fredric March, Halliwell Hobbes, Blanche LeClair, Henry Daniel and Hilda Moore, brings to the screen another outstanding stage play presented in a more living form.

"Jealousy" is laid in a glamorous Parisian background, with models artists and the idle rich who use lives as pawns. Jeanne Eagels, as Yvonne, marries a poor artist, concealing a questionable past from him. Encountering financial difficulties, she goes to her former lover for aid, in the meantime he has been killed under unusual circumstances.

A mystery within a mystery and a supreme love combine to give Miss Eagels opportunity to display her amazing dramatic talents and make "Jealousy" as great a milestone in talking pictures as was her former success "The Letter." The earnest theater goer will not miss it under any circumstances.

GRUNDY FACES PROBE BY SENATE

WASHINGTON, March 6.—UP—Senator J. R Grundy, Rep., Penn., was accused in the senate today of "returning to his first love"—lobbying—and an immediate investigation was ordered into reports that the American Tariff league, of which Grundy was former vice president, may change headquarters in one of the senate offices assigned to him.

This development concerning the one-time powerful lobbyist of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers association was compared by some with the employment of Charles L. Eyanson of the Connecticut Manufacturers association by Senator Bingham, Rep., Conn.

Bingham was censured by the senate.

Chairman Carroway of the Senate Lobby committee announced that his committee will investigate the charges and he immediately ordered John Larch, attorney for the league and W. F. Doane, editor of "The Manufacturer" a high tariff publication to appear before his committee tomorrow.

Grundy took the floor and insisted the lobbyists were only 'visistor' in his offices.

"No one is there directly or indirectly connected with the American Tariff league,' Grundy said. "The people in my office are there because we are in the midst of the tariff fight and Pennsylvania is interested in nearly every schedule."

Grundy added that many of the league officials call at his office and are welcomed there.

DEATHS, ARRESTS MARK RED THURSDAY DEMONSTRATIONS

relief for unemployed men, unemployment insurance and less police activity against those dissatisfied with the "capitalist" system.

TEAR GAS USED IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Mar. 6—(U.P.)—Tear gas and blackjacks dispersed an unemployed demonstration led by Communists on the sidewalk in front of the White House today. Thirteen of the 106 demonstrators were arrested after two "riots," each of which lasted about 10 seconds.

President Hoover's office in the state and war department building overlooks the scene of the demonstration.

The demonstrators, led by a few Communists, paraded for 15 minutes on the broad sidewalk with several score of park and city police watching. They bore placards demanding work, shorter hours, shorter weeks, and attacking police brutality.

Police dived at them when one of the leaders stopped by the iron White House fence and began to speak. The demonstrators gathered round, and several fights ensued. Thousands of spectators gathered, and a few bystanders joined in the melee against the demonstrators.

A park policeman shattered a tear bomb on the pavement, and the demonstrators were quickly subdued and a wagon load of police reserves clanged up to take those arrested to the police station. Just across the street in Lafayette park, a similar attempt to speak was made and stopped by police.

On capitol hill, a mile away, the Senate commerce committee appointed a sub-committee to hold open hearings in accordance with a proposal by Senator Wagner, Dem., N. Y. Labor department officials and others will be called to outline the present situation, in which at least 3,000,000 are said to be out of work, and discuss preventive possibilities for now and for the future.

MANY INJURED IN LONDON FIGHT

LONDON, Mar. 6— (U.P.) —The worst clash between police and radicals in London since the general strike of May, 1926, occurred today after 5000 Communists and unemployed marched in 4 streams to Tower Hill with bands playing "The Red Flag."

Numerous persons, including several police, were injured in a fight in which women took part.

After the speeches the Communists tried to march but police barred the way. The leaders then circled through the workmen's area and returned to the hill, where a solid phalanx of police barred the way to the financial district where the mansion house is located.

Several hundred demonstrators reached an unguarded side street and started marching to Mansion House, but 30 foot police and a squadron of mounted officers charged them. The Communists, including 20 women, battered the police with their banner poles despite the use of truncheons against them. The women attacked a young policeman, beat him on the head and smashed his helmet.

The Communists finally dispersed, carrying away several of their number who had been trampled by the horses. Some of those injured were women.

EIGHT ARRESTED IN BOSTON DEMONSTRATION

BOSTON, Mar. 6—(U.P.)—A "Red Thursday" riot on Boston Common and in front of the state house today resulted in the arrests of eight Communists and the dispersal of a crowd of more than 6000.

The arrest of Jackson Wales, Communist secretary, precipitated the riot. A call brought more reserves, who forestalled further demonstrations.

TWO ARRESTED IN LOS ANGELES PARADE

LOS ANGELES, Mar. 6—(U.P.)—A single brief skirmish in which two women offered the only determined opposition to waiting police forces comprised the Communist demonstration in front of the city hall today.

Only a sprinkling of persons in the crowd of several hundred, most of them curious watchers, made a feeble effort to protect the two women from arrest. However, the two were bundled into a police car quickly and booked on charges of criminal syndicalism.

RED DEMONSTRATION AT S. F. QUIET

SAN FRANCISCO, Mar. 6—(U.P.)—With more than 10,000 persons present, San Francisco's "Red Thursday" demonstration passed very quietly at Civic Center today.

Mayor James Rolph, Jr., played host, addressing the army of unemployed. The city erected a speakers stand for the occasion.

After an hour or two of speech-making, and Mayor Rolph had promised to carry demands for employment to the supervisors, the gathering dispersed.

BERLIN POLICE BATTLE THRONGS

BERLIN, Mar. 6—(U.P.)—Police with drawn revolvers patrolled principal sections of Berlin tonight in trucks with powerful searchlights, firing volley after volley into the air or at Communists who refused to disperse.

At least one demonstrator was killed near the Unter Den Linden and three in the went-end were wounded. Scores wre injured, including police, Communists and innocent pedestrians. One officer accidentally shot himself in the leg.

Police Shoot

Late in the afternoon several hundred unemployed gathered in front of Communist party headquarters and continually reassembled after police, with truncheons swinging, had dispersed them.

Three small detachments of Communists marching into Berlin from three industrial suburbs were halted.

Police fired over the heads of demonstrators who gathered at Unter Den Linden and Friedrichstrasse, in the heart of the city, after once being dispersed. Small groups surrounded individual policemen and harrassed them. Finally the officers fired into the crowd.

The clashes continued after nightfall in many parts of the city.

The Communists hoisted the red flag over their headquarters, while the police trucks gave special attention to the Neukoekn labor districts. Despite efforts to dislodge them, the Reds occupied Buelow Square during the evening.

A group of unemployed tried to raid a branch of the Dresdener bank, only to be dispersed.

BATTLE OF WORDS IN NORTHWEST

PORTLAND, Ore., Mar. 6—(U.P.)—Demonstrations of the unemployed in the Pacific northwest today turned into a battle of words, words, words.

Mayor George L. Baker of Portland—"Comrade Baker" as the asserted radicals called him, addressed a milling group of more than 200 men who marched from the plaza blocks to the city hall to present their grievances.

"If you don't like the United States you can go back to your Utopia in Russia," the mayor said, after he had previously said he was in sympathy with the unemployed and would confer with their spokesman at any time the group disbanded without trouble.

In Seattle hundreds of men milled about the sidewalks, while a small group made an attempt to stage a demonstration. Police dispersed the marchers and arrested a few men. Speakers exhorted the unemployed and many banners were displayed bearing the inscription "fight or starve" and "down with capitalism."

"GOOD TIME" AT CHICAGO MEETING

CHICAGO, Mar. 6—(U.P.)—Communists, 10,000 strong, held their parade here today and a good time was had by all.

The parade straggled through the west side of the town, a "tough district" said Deputy Police Commissioner John Stege. So he sent out an escort of police to see that the paraders were not molested.

A motley crew of Communists, high school girls, hoboes and unemployed workers assembled under banners which called for the "fall of American imperialism" and the "ousting of capitalism."

100 INJURED IN NEW YORK RIOTS

NEW YORK, Mar. 6—(U.P.)—Upwards of 40,000 spectators, massed in Union Square this afternoon for the Communist demonstration against world unemployment, were thrown into wild panic when the demonstration flashed into one of the most furious riots since the World war.

More than 100 persons were injured as two score mounted policemen, massed in squads, charged again and again into the swirling, fighting, clawing mob.

The crowd swept through the streets and across the park in great waves. Those who stumbled and fell were trampled underfoot as the human tide was swept backward and forward by the charging horsemen.

Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen leaped into the midst of the screaming rioters and took an active part in the battle. He leaped upon one particularly violent Communist and threw him to the pavement.

The Communists surged toward Broadway. The head of their broad column had not moved more than 50 feet when a squad of mounted police came charging down. Fighting spread across and was continued for about 20 minutes. Policemen used blackjacks and their fists. The Communists fought with their fists and with rocks. One rock struck a policeman on the head and knocked him down. He was trampled and severely injured.

Fire hydrants were opened. Police riot wagons and ambulances clanged through the streets. Order was restored quickly, the Communists being split into small groups and driven into side streets.

Additions For Traffic Squad

MARTINEZ, March 6.—With the appointment of four additional traffic officers to the Contra Costa county squad, Traffic Capt. George Belon was today preparing to organize a night patrol of the highways.

The new officers, who will be on probation for six months before they receive regular appointments, are: Charles E. Broomhower of El Cerrito, George R. Crockerton of Walnut Creek; Wilford Kennerly of Concord and R. H. Trembartz of Martinez .

GERMAN NAVY LEADER DIES

BERLIN, March 6.—UP— Grand Admiral Alfred P. Von Tirpitz, "creator of the German Imperial navy," died in his sleep today in a sanitarium at Edenhausen, near Munich, five days less than 81 years old.

Belligerent to the last, the man whose insistence on unrestricted submarine warfare brought the United States into the World War had a paradoxically peaceful end. His heart had been weakened by a bronchial attack last February. He fell asleep last night after saying he felt ill.

He never work up. His wife, one son and physicians were at his bed side when he stopped breathing.

Memorial Service

The Nationalist party, to which the big navy admiral belonged, was in caucus at the Reichstag when the news of his death was received. Immediately the members held a memorial service. Later they submitted a motion asking the government to reconsider a previous decision and appropriate money for the start of a second "pocket battlehsip" of the Ersat Preussen type.

The navy yards at Wilhemshaven flew flags at half mast for Von Tirpitz. President Paul Von Hindenburg, induced by Von Tirpitz to run for the presidency and later attacked by him for not seeking restoration of the monarchy, sent the admiral's widow the following telegram:

Cherish Memory

"The German navy will cherish the remembrance of your husband's great service to the nation's fleet in peace and war."

Von Tirpitz clung to the last to the belief that his advice, if followed, might have caused Germany to win the war. Never a great believer in submarines before the conflict started, he altered his views and desired to launch the "unrestricted" use of U-boats long before the Kaiser would consent.

Resigned Post

He resigned from his post as Minister of Marine because of Wilhelm's hesitance in 1916 but continued to direct the navy from behind the scene. He was heart-broken because the German grand fleet was never sent out to a pitched battle against England's fleet, and was close to tears when mutiny broke out among the ships' crews before the establishment of the republic. He felt it a personal blow when the fleet surrendered in a body.

Yet he had his delusions. As late as 1918 he said, "America's effective participation in the war is, and always will be a phantom."

In an interview with the United Press in January, he predicted the five-power naval conference would fail of concrete results. Submarines would not be abolished, he said, American would not obtain freedom of the seas and private wars would continue to be waged.

JAMES BAKER, who confessed that he killed nine persons just to "see them suffer" is being held in Detroit.

School Banking On Increase Here

School banking is increasing rapidly at Richmond Union high school, several classes having almost reached the 100 percent mark in banking.

The class leading in the percentages of pupils banking are: Jean Collins, 85 percent; Grace Dotts, 63 percent; Louisa Giaque, 58 percent; Muriel Ogden 56 percent; Ella Eachus 50 percent and George Eby 48 percent.

'Voice Coach' At Movie Colony

HOLLYWOOD, Mar. 6—(U.P.)—The movie colony's first "voice coach" to be employed by a film studio, arrived today. He is Dr. P. M. Marafioti of New York, for 18 years teacher of opera and concert singers. He will assist Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer stars in preparing for their vocal pictures.

MAN HURT IN JUNGLE FIGHT

MARTINEZ, March 6.—Thomas Burke, 74, intinerant, is today in the county hospital, following a free for all fight in the "jungles" near Crockett last night. He is suffering from fractured ribs, and cuts and abrasians on the head and face.

Constable Joseph Meaney, notified by an anonymous telephone call, found the man lying near the railroad tracks.

Meaney declared that the "jungles" resting places for hoboes, had been heavily populated the last few days, and the fight was probably the result of a "canned heat party."

Burke was uncounscious when fcund by Meaney, and was unable to tell authorities whether or not a blood stained shirt and "bundle" found in a box car was his.

Art Students Of High Entered In Poster Contest

Art students at Richmond Union high school have entered 12 posters in the annual humane poster contest sponsored by the Latham Foundation. Ninety-six cash prizes and four school trophies will be presented to the winners of the contest. March 15 is the closing date for the poster contest.

The contest is being held for the purpose of promoting kindness to animals.

Scout Executive To Address Guard

Announcement was made at a business meeting of the American Guard last night, that Robert F. Cox, Richmond Scout executive, would speak before the Guard next Thursday night.

The meeting was held in the Brotherhood hall, and was followed by a social evening of cards.

Cox will speak on the activities of the Scouts.

Announcing Another P·G·and E· Electric Rate Reduction

$2,400,000.00 Saving to Consumers

Now, electric rates for consumers of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company are reduced over Two Million, Four Hundred Thousand Dollars a year.

Lighting rates are cut to a maximum rate of 4½ cents per kilowatt hour for incorporated areas, with a similar reduction in all areas.

The new rates are of greatest benefit to the small consumer — the residence user, stores and offices. Substantial reductions have been made in commercial, industrial and agricultural power rates. Street lighting rates are reduced.

Domestic combination rates for consumers using lighting service and in addition having electric appliances for heating and/or cooking, are as low as 1½ cents per kilowatt hour. The new commercial lighting schedules provide for lighting rates as low as 2 cents per kilowatt hour.

These new schedules providing lower electric rates are designed to encourage liberal usage of electricity at low cost. The new rates are among the lowest obtainable anywhere.

ELECTRICITY IS CHEAPER—YOU CAN USE MORE—MAKE IT YOUR SERVANT

Let electricity brighten the gloomy corners. Let it do the cooking, ironing, washing. Let it sweep the floors, operate the electric fan, drive away chills. It will percolate the coffee, make the toast, keep food warm or cool and wholesome.

Modern electric appliances bring comfort, convenience and economy.

HIGH NINE TO MEET OAKLAND TEAM TODAY

The Richmond Union high school nine will enter Alameda County Athletic league baseball competition for the first time when it clashes with the University High school outfit of Oakland today at the Bushrod park diamond in Oakland. The contest is scheduled to begin at 4 o'clock.

Richmond's chances in the A. C. A. L. depend on the showing of its baseball neophytes, who's ability has not yet been given the supreme test. However, Richmond high is assured of a battery of the highest caliber in John Babich and John Rosano, former Corey Garage athletes. Lewis Ball who saw action behind the platter for the high school last year should be a close rival for the receiving position.

The other boys who will compose this year's high school outfit are: Howard Miller, catcher; J. Bono, G. Lemon, pitchers; Leslie Scarcella, first sack; W. Ottman, Mike Sanfilippo, second base; George Degnan, Robert Humphrey, third base; Jack Stoddard, shortstop; Herbert Heise, Ray Juillerat, Earl Rogers, shortstop; and Howard Miller, catcher.

TENNIS OPENS AT HIGH SCHOOL

Tennis season at Richmond Union high school will begin next Wednesday when the Richmond high school athletes meet the iPedmont high school team at thhe Richmond city hall courts.

This year's Richmond high team is being coached by Clifford Fallon. The members of the squad are Jimmie Hurley, Darrow Sutton, Avilla, and Phil Carlin. Another player will be named before the season begins.

Track Athletes At High School Train For Meets

Track athletes at Richmond union high school are practising industriously toward getting into condition for the annual interclass track meet to be held soon. The meet had been scheduled to take place today, but, due to the muddy condition of the track and field at the high school, it has been postponed. It will probably be held next week if the weather remains fair.

An exceptionally large number of athletes has signed up to participate in the inter-class meet this year. Several veterans are still ready for action, and ought to figure prominently for their classes. These o'der boys are: Schuyler Albert, mile; Bill Young, Howard Dalton, Carl Drexel, half mile; Charlie Jackson, pole vault; George Miller, sprints; Johnny Babich, Roy Carson, Paul Maloney and Lawrence Dunleavy, throwing events.

Cage Captains

FRANKIE KLICK, DIX WIN S.F. FIGHTS

SAN FRANCISCO, March 6.—UP—Frankie Klick, San Francisco featherweight won a 10 round decision over Ward Parks of St. Paul, and Madison Dix, Pacific northwest welterweight won a similar fight from Jimmie Goodrich of Buffalo, in the double header at Dreamland tonight.

Both fights were featured by hard punching—Dix scoring a knockdown over Goodrich in the seventh.

Preliminary results:

Jack Connel, knocked out Jack Lavai, three; Paul Negri, drew with Tiger Parks, four; Louie O'Neil knocked out Jack Paisano, one.

Ruppert, Ruth Gird For Battle

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. March 6.—UP—Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the N. Y. Yankes, arrived here today from New York, and the stage was set for the last round of the battle with Babe Ruth. It is expected that they will get together some time tomorrow, but there is no certainty that their first conferences will induce the colonel to yield to the Babe's demand of a three year contract at $85,000 a year.

Carmen Hill Has Stiff Workout

BRADENTON, Fla., March 6.—UPPitcher Carmen Hill, purchased by the St. Louis Cardinals from Pittsburgh late last season, demonstrated in today's workout that he has fully recovered from a twisted back which handicapped him last year.

French Trotter Breaks Record

PARIS, Mar. 5—(U.P.)—The American trotting horse, "Sam Williams," broke the French kilometre (.621 of a mile) trotting record at the Enghien Les Bains race track today, covering the distance in 1 minute, 19 3-5 seconds. The record, however, is unofficial because the horse was not born in France.

Al Singer Will Fight Fernandez

NEW YORK, Mar. 5—(U.P.)—Al Singer, New York lightweight contender and Ignacio Fernandiz, Filipino, have been matched for a 10-round bout in Madison Square Garden Mar. 28. Fernandiz knocked out Singer in three rounds last May 17.

Phillies, Reds 'Dark Horses'

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., March 6.—UP—The Cincinnati Reds and the Phillies are the dark horses of the National league race this season, according to President John H. Heydler, who paid the Phils' camp a visit today.

Chicago Cubs Play Practice Contest

AVALON, March 6.—UP— A team captained by Rogers Hornsby defeated one led by Charley Grimm 3 to 1, in a nine inning practice game today. Hack Wilson poled a double and a triple for the winners and Grimm hit a home run for his side's only run.

HERMAN HOLDOUT

'Noisy' Gillis Entertains South

LOS ANGELES, Mar. 6—(U.P.)—The jutting jaw dropped, the pudgy forefinger lay motionless and snores, without a doubt, broke the silence—Bossy Gillis, mayor of Newburyport, Mass., and admitted "it" man of politics, slept.

Gillis was very, very tired today. But at last he blinked and stretched, leaped to the floor end proclaimed:

"I'm going back there and raise hell in Massachusetts."

Gillis was practicing. A short time later, he attended a luncheon of the United Veterans of the Republic and explained how he once had done time in the Newburyport jail.

"I'm going to raise the roof of the statehouse and turn the civil service commission upside down," he told the assemblage. "And if I have to go to jail again, I'll get what I want—jobs for disabled veterans."

Little Mayor Gillis visited Mayor Porter of Los Angeles. Gillis was wearing an overcoat despite the southern California sunshine, and the local executive expressed amazement.

"Oh, I was too tired to take it off," the Newburyport loud speaker bellowed.

Trappers To See Civilization

DUTCH HARBOR, Alaska, Mar. 6—(U.P.)—Enroute to Seattle to see the wonders of the civilized world, three native trappers left here today on the Kanaga Ranching company's auxiliary schooner Aleutian Native for Puget Sound.

The three trappers have seen airplanes, man's latest conquest in the realm of mechanical science, but have never seen automobiles, street cars, trees or tall office buildings.

They are to be initiated into the wonders of civilization for the first time when they reach Seattle as that is the next port of call on the schooner's itinerary.

The Aleutian Native put in here for engine repairs made necessary from a hard trip to the islands west of Dutch Harbor. The crew has been collecting the winter strap harvest of red and blue fox skins.

Girl Aids In Bandit Search

McPHERSON, Kan., March 6.—UP—A high school girl who could scream loud and long when bandits shoved a revolver at her and then get their automobile license numbers, tonight furnished officers the best clue in the search for men who robbed the People's State bank here.

The bandits were herding two bank employes into the vault as Laurine Reiff, 16, entered the building. Her prolonged scream freightened them away.

As the two men fled Miss Reiff ran to a front window and copied their machine license number. The bandits took between $2000 and $3000.

Portland Store President Dies

PORTLAND, Mar. 6—(U.P.)—Abe Meier, president of the store of Meier and Frank company for the past 19 years died at his home here today following an extended illness. He would have been 62 years old next Sunday.

Meier, who was the son of the founder of the institution, was known to thousands throughout Oregon.

Storm Delays Pirate Contest

PASO ROBLES, March 6.—UP—Rain which prevented morning practice in the Pittsburgh training camp today caused the first interclub game to be postponed from Friday to Saturday. Roy Frazier, outfielder who purchased his release from Oakland, reported today.

BASKETBALL SUPPLANTED BY BASEBALL AT R.U.H.S.

The diamond is king at Richmond high school, and the high school gymnasium is left to its echoes of cries of triump and dismay. Yet there still remains the usual aftermath of discussion on the exploits of the athletes who wore the colors of the Navy Blue and Red during the basketball season of 1930. Tales of the hard and uphill struggle of the local high school boys still linger, and will continue to do so until another hoop season swings around to give the fans another cage squad to discuss.

Richmond high was handicapped at the very start by the inexperience of the majority of the recruits for squad positions. It was a continuous struggle throughout the season for the local heavyweights, but the improvement shown by them at the conclusion of the season was gratifying to Coalh Phil Hempler.

The R. U. H. S. varsity lost 3 out of 12 contests since the Christmas holidays. The heavyweights scored 187 points during the entire season to their opponents' 222. Many of Richmond's defeats were directly due to the unusual number of fouls committed by its players. The local athletes committed 113 fouls this season, of which 57 earned their opponents important points. This unfortunate number of free shots was due mainly to the inexperience of the local boys. The only athletes who had ever played with the Richmond high varsity prior to this season were Joe Viano and Waide McCain.

Mike Brock, a newcomer to Richmond union high school, captained the varsity aggregation, and his defensive playing was one of the main bulwarks of the local heavyweight squad.

Joe Viano, a varsity veteran, ended his basketball career at Richmond high in admirable fashion this year. Other boys who did well and who will not be able to play with the high school squad again were Bruno Roveda, Lester Meyers and Ed Harlow

Next year Richmond will have a more experienced varsity crew than this season, for the majority of the athletes who saw action this year will again be with the high school squad in 1931. This year's varsity athletes who will still be at high school next year are: Mike Brock, Ed Masek, Leslie Scarcella, Reno Passone, Waide McCain, Carl Drexel, Benny Hoefer and James Kenny.

The Richmond high B lightweights had the most successful season to be enjoyed by any of the local teams this year. The B's broke even with five wins and five defeats. They ended the season nicely by taking the Alumni lightweights into camp by a score of 27 to 21.

The B aggregation was led during the past season by John Rollino, who always handed the bleachers an exhibition of snappy floor work. The other regular members of the B team were: "Beasel" Marcos, Ugo Boschetti, Charlie Doidge, Carl Johnson, Andy Wilson, Tom Wilson, Mike Sanfilippo, Glen Conn, Bob Miller and Earl Rogers.

The Richmond union high school C team captained by Jimmie Hurley, won five contests out of eight during the past season. The lightweights had a clever little outfit which did creditable work through out the season.

The remainder of the C squad included: George Cervenka, Clement Cervenka, Wayne Jackson, George Oishi, Fred DeCorten, Orville Wakefield, Tinker, Terek, Mitchell and Arthur Lee.

Next year's varsity outfit should be one of the fastest heavyweight squads ever produced by the coaches of the local high school, judging by the fine material that was revealed in this season's B and C teams.

BILOXI, Miss., March 6.—UP—An exhibition flier barely missed crashing into the grandstand during the Washington Senators work out when his motor stalled as he flew over the field. Coach Nick Altrock ran and hid in the shower house.

COREY NINE TO MEET OAKLAND BALL CLUB

The Corey Garage nine is scheduled to go into action against the Oakland Acorns, a colored team from Oakland, Sunday on the El Cerrito diamond at 2 o'clock.

The Garagemen will be greatly weakened by the loss of their sensational battery, Johnny Babich and John Rosano. Babich and Rosano are unable to play any longer for the Coreys, as they are now members of the Richmond union high school nine. According to the ruling of the Alameda County Athletic league, of which the local high school is a member, no player on a high school team competing in the league can play with an outside team without endangering his league standing.

Babich and Rosano have been two of the main reasons for the success of the Corey aggregation. Babich surprised the fans a few weeks ago by pitching a no hit, no run game against the Agnetian club of Oakland. Rosano also did a first-class job behind the platter for the Garage outfit. The loss of those two stellar athletes will be sadly felt by the El Cerrito athletes.

The battery that will take the place of Babich and Rosano has not yet been announced by L. Matthews, manager of the Coreys.

S. F., Oakland Ice Teams Play Tie

SAN FRANCISCO, Mar. 6—(U.P.)—The ice hockey game between the Oakland and the San Francisco Tigers ended tonight in a scoreless tie, after a 10 minute over period.

Both goal keepers, Broadfoot of the Tigers and Fowler of the Shieks, played fine games, but the outstanding star of the evening was Benny Ward of the Tigers.

The GREEN GODDESS
by LOUISE JORDAN MILN

Copyright, 1922, by Frederick A. Stokes Company

"The Green Goddess," starring George Arliss, is a Warner Bros. Vitaphone picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Forced to bring his airplane down in the Himalayas, Dr. Basil Traherne and his guests, Major Anthony Crespin and his wife, Lucilla, find themselves in the hostile country of Rukh. The Oxford educated Raja appears to be friendly until he learns that three Rukhians are to be executed in India for a political murder. They begin to fear escape from Rukh will not be so easy. Traherne is in love with Lucilla, who has been estranged from her husband through his drinking and infidelity. In spite of their danger the two men are on the brink of a quarrel in the Raja's palace when Lucilla enters in a late Paris gown.

Rukh laughed pleasantly. "Pray, pray, Major, let us postpone that question for the moment. First let us fortify ourselves; after dinner we will talk seriously. If you are in too great a hurry to desert me, must I not conclude, Madam, that you are dissatisfied with your reception?"

"How could we possibly be so ungrateful, Your Highness," she said "Your hospitality overwhelms us."

Rukh kept his eyes over her slowly as she stood before him, and he said deferentially, "I trust my Mistress of the Robes furnished you with all you required?"

"With all and more than all. She offered me quite a bewildering array of gorgeous apparel."

"Oh, I am glad." There was just a caressing note in the Raja's

"My mistress of the wardrobe has chosen well."

voice, more than a hint of velvet. "I had hoped that perhaps your choice might have fallen on something more—" his eyes indicated "decollete" even more than the graceful gesture of his slender olive hand. "But no, I was wrong—Madam's taste is irreproachable."

"You see, Madam," he said to her, "we fall behind the age here. We are still in the Anatole France period. If he bores you, here is a Maurice Barres that you may find more amusing."

"Oh," Mrs. Crespin told him as she took it, "I, too, am in the Anatole France period, I assure you. 'Sur la Pierre Blanche'—Isn't that the one you were recommending to me, Dr. Traherne?"

"Yes, I like it better than some of his later books," Traherne replied, joining them.

The Raja spoke again to Lucilla. "Are you fond of music, Mrs. Crespin? But, of course, you are! Suppose we have some during dinner." He went to the gramophone in the corner and began turning over a stack of records that lay beside it and put one of them carefully on the top of the pile, just as Watkins came noiselessly in from a door. "Watkins, just start that top record, will you. Ah, Madame est servie! Allow me—"

And Mrs. Crespin laid her white hand on the brown man's black-sleeved arm.

"I can recommend this caviare, Major," Rukh said when they were seated—"and you'll take a glass of maraschino with it—Russian fashion?"

The gramophone reeled out its first slow bars, and a wonderful sunset flooded the loggia.

"Oh, what is that?" Lucilla asked after she'd listened a moment.

"Don't you know it?" Rukh questioned.

"Oh, yes, but I can't think what it is."

"Gounod's 'Funeral March of a Marionette,'" the Raja said in an odd voice, an odd look in his narrowed eyes—"a most humorous composition. May I pour you a glass of maraschino, Madam?"

CHAPTER XX

THE dinner was sumptuous; better still, it was perfect.

The Funeral March pulsed through the loggia. The sky was the color of blood. When the record was finished, Rukh called for no other.

Antony Crespin was drinking too much. Traherne watched him through angry eyes; Rukh, now seeming to look, with an inscrutable smile. Lucilla was nervous and wretched. Surely he might have controlled his craving until he had reached his own room.

But Crespin could not wait. He was doing his best. And he was eating heartily.

Traherne ate well too—doing it in careful forethought of what might be before him to do—or to attempt. And Lucilla ate as much as she could. She too was doing her best.

The Raja ate sparingly, without seeming to do so, and drank very little. But he chatted entertainingly all the time: the perfect host considerate and quietly cordial.

The meal was long—not too long. The sunset glow faded, great stars pulsed green, white and gold in the strip of purple sky between the o'ertopping, high, snow-covered mountains.

"What a heavenly night!" Mrs. Crespin murmured, when they had finished dining and had moved out on a sort of verandah.

"Yes," Rukh assented, "our summer climate is far from bad."

"The air is like champagne," she said with a long, slow breath of enjoyment.

"A little over frappe for some tastes," the Raja suggested. "What do you say, Madam? Shall we have coffee indoors? There is an edge to the air at these altitudes, as soon as the sun has gone down."

"Yes, I do feel a little chilly now," she owned, and she shivered slightly.

"Watkins, send for a shawl for Madam," Rukh said in quick concern, rising quickly. The others rose with him, of course. They had to play the social game with this native princelet upon whose whim so much depended for them. Rukh offered his arm to Mrs. Crespin, and again the Englishwoman had to take it.

"Let me find you a comfortable seat, Madam," he said as he led her in, and bowed when he had guided her to a great lounge chair. "When the fire is lighted, I think you will find this quite pleasant. Take the other chair, Major. I must really refurnish this room. My ancestors had no notion of comfort. To tell the truth, I use the room only on state occasions, like the present. I have a much more modern snuggery upstairs, which I hope you will see tomorrow." It was quite courteously said, but there was invitation in his soft black eyes, a hint of it and of caress in his voice. Lucilla caught it, and so did Basil Traherne. She gave no sign, but Traherne still standing at the loggia opening, looking out into the night, clenched his strong, brown fingers.

"Star-gazing, Dr. Traherne?" the Raja asked him.

Traherne turned at that, and came to the others. "I beg your pardon," he said.

"Dr. Traherne is quite an astronomer," Lucilla said.

"As much at home with the telescope as with the microscope, eh?"

"Oh, no," said Traherne, "I'm no astronomer. I can pick out a few of the constellations,—that's all."

"For my part," the Raja declared, "I look at the stars as little as possible. As a spectacle they're monotonous, and they don't bear thinking of. Ah, here it is!" He took the shawl the woman had brought, and placed it delicately about Mrs. Crespin's shoulders.

"What an exquisite shawl!" she exclaimed, drawing an end of it through her fingers. "It is the most beautiful-made thing I have ever seen."

"And most becoming." Rukh smiled into her eyes as he spoke. "Don't you think so, Doctor?" Traherne flushed at the Raja's words without answering; Rukh laughed softly, and let it pass.

"My Mistress of the Robes has chosen well!" He motioned his beautiful, slim hands in noiseless applause to the ayah, who grinned, and went, as she'd come, not making a sound.

"Why won't the stars bear thinking of, Raja?" Lucilla asked.

"Well, dear lady, don't you think they're rather ostentatious? I was guilty of a little showing off today, when I played that foolish trick with my regular troops. But think of the Maharaja up yonder who night after night whistles up his glittering legions, and puts them through their deadly punctual drill, as much as to say, 'See what a devil of a fellow I am!' Do you think it quite in good taste, Madam?"

Traherne laughed frankly. "I'm afraid you're jealous, Raja! You don't like having to play second fiddle to a still more absolute ruler."

"Perhaps you're right, Doctor," the Rajah owned; "perhaps it's partly that. But there's something more to it. I can't help resenting the respect paid to mere size—to the immensity, as they call it, of the universe. Are we to worship a god because he's big?"

S. S. AMERICA ON MERCY MISSION

ABOARD S. S. AMERICA AT SEA, March 6.—UP—Radios crackled, two big ships maneuvered within 500 yards of each other and Chief Officer Harry Manning accomplished another mission of mercy tonight—all because a seriously burned girl in New Orleans was calling for her father.

Chief Engineer Frank Battam, of the eastbound steamer Cranford wanted to hurry home in response to his daughter's wish. He appealed to Capt. Jameson of the Cranford and Jameson radioed to Capt. George S. Fried, of the westbound America asking him to take Battam aboard.

Battam's wife, the message read had received fatal burns in a fire aboard the S. S. Scantic at New Orleans last Sunday. His son was missing after attempting a rescue. His daughter was seriously burned a ndwas calling for him.

Fried, veteran of many rescues and known as a humanitarian of the sea, needed to be asked only once. When the ships were 500 yards apart he sent Manning his chief mainstay on such errands in a life boat with 11 men across the swells.

When the lifeboat returned 40 minutes later, Battam was hoisted aboard the United States liner almost piteable in his desire to express his thanks.

Searchlights played on the lifeboats and the breeches buoys that swung Battam upward. The boat smashed against the America's side and was seriously cracked.

The Cranford's radio message telling of Battam's desire to be transferred was sent this afternoon while both boats were about 30 miles south of Cape Race.

Escaped Convict Taken In East

PITTSBURG, March 6.—UP—Jose San Doval, arrested here on a charge of vagrancy, was identified tonight by Capt. Clawson of the identification bureau as an escaped convict wanted in Los Angeles.

Los Angeles police telegraphed here to say that the man escaped from a prison road camp on Aug. 8, 1927 and that they had been looking for him ever since. He was arrested and convicted on a charge of battery in Los Angeles.

Authorities are sending an officer to take the man back to Los Angeles.

3 Indicted On Stock Charges Surrender In S. F

SAN FRANCISCO, March 6.—UP—Three of the six members of a San Francisco brokerage firm indicted Tuesday for aiding in the embezzlement of $528,000 from the Bank of Italy surrendered late today to federal authorities.

They were George N. Keyston, former president of the San Francisco Stock Exchange, who resigned when informed of the indictments; Douglas C. Alexander and Claude Galmarino. They gave themselves up after federal authorities had declared that they would be handcuffed and brought in if they did not come voluntarily.

All made bail and were immediately released.

Ray S. Rossiter and Charles H. Clay, two more members of the Leib-Keystone firm, were reported on their way from Los Angeles and expected to surrender tomorrow.

Meanwhile, notice was given by Sterling Carr, attorney for Joseph Bray and R. G. Haddow, former officials of the branch bank where the defalcations occured, that both men will be government witnesses when the cases are called to trial.

Federal officials were investigating the existence of other accounts, maintained under dummy names by the three bank employes. It was estimated that the total amount of the thefts might amount to several times the $529,000 known to be missing.

Engineer Talks To High Group

More than 150 boys of shop and mechanical drawing classes at Richmond Union high school listened recently to a talk on engineering by E. S. Dixon, well known engineer of South Bend, Ind.

Dixon pointed out to the boys the necessity of mathematics, mechanical drawing, and history for engineers and mechanics. He stated that there is always room at the top for the young men with ambition. He also spoke of the present demand for skilled workmen in the profession of engineering. Following his talk, Dixon gave personal advice to many of the boys concerning their future vocations.

The eminent visitor stated that he was much impressed by the equipment of the local high school shops and by the methods of instruction employed by the vocational training teachers at Richmodn Union high school.

A $1.25 to Rid Your Home of Moths May Save You Hundreds of Dollars.

MORTEMOTH KILLS MOTHS

The gas from Mortemoth crystals not only protects your furniture for a long time, but contact with it kills all moths, their eggs and their dangerous larvae in furniture which is already infested.

The proper method of using Mortemoth crystals is to tie them in small sacks, and to place these sacks down in the channel of the piece, as deeply as possible, behind the cushions, so that, upon expansion, the gas will spread and fill the spring units in the back and in the bottom of the piece.

When the sacks are empty, fill them again.

Eastside Market Installs Newest Display Counter

One of the latest sanitary devices for meat market has been installed by the Eastside Market, 2114 Macdonald avenue.

Through the use of this new device, patrons of the market are assured of fresh, clean meats at all times.

A new "Supercold" showcase has been installed in the shop by Fred Rosenstrauch, the proprietor. The showcase occupies a prominent spot in the market and is used for the displaying of fresh meats.

Inside of the case a series of pipes is sued to maintain an even temperature at all times. The temperature is the same as in the giant refrigerator in another part of the market.

Through an automatic device, the temperature is maintained at an even point throughout the day and night, protecting the fresh cuts of meat in all weather, summer or winter. Meats placed in the showcase are out of the open air and are never touched by human hands after they are cut until wrapped up for the customer.

The showcase is said to be one of the most modern of its kinds.

Religious Drama At 1st Christian Church Tonight
